

INSTRUCTIONS FOR AUTHORS

Content. The content published in Language Acquisition: A Journal of Developmental Linguistics makes a clear contribution to linguistic theory by increasing our understanding of how language is acquired. The journal focuses on the acquisition of syntax, semantics, phonology, and morphology, and it considers theoretical, experimental, and computational perspectives. Coverage includes solutions to the logical problem of language acquisition, as it arises from particular grammatical proposals; discussion of acquisition data relevant to current linguistic questions; and perspectives derived from second language acquisition, language-impaired speakers, and other domains of cognition.

Articles. An article should be submitted electronically, as an e-mail attachment to the journal's main address (Editors@LanguageAcquisition.org) or according to the instructions available on the journal's Web site (<http://www.LanguageAcquisition.org>). The preferred format is Microsoft Word. Please prepare the article according to the style sheet also available on the journal's Web site. Type all components of the article double-spaced including title page, abstract, text, quotes, references, appendixes, tables, figure captions, and footnotes. The abstract should be no more than 1,000 characters in length (counting spaces between words). Articles based on laboratory experimentation should include complete experimental stimuli in an appendix. The article must be rendered anonymous (see Blind Review section below) before submission.

Squibs and Replies. A squib or reply should conform to the same requirements as an article with the following exceptions: The manuscript should not exceed 12 double-spaced pages, including footnotes and references, and excluding figures and tables. No abstract is required. Inclusion of complete experimental stimuli is not required. The manuscript should be submitted electronically, as an e-mail attachment to the Squib editors (Squibs@LanguageAcquisition.org) or according to the instructions available on the journal's Web site (<http://www.LanguageAcquisition.org>).

Dissertation Notices. Authors of recent dissertations on language acquisition are invited to submit a synopsis for publication. The dissertation should have been completed within 3 years prior to submission. Research on L1, L2, and/or special populations is appropriate, provided that the research makes a clear contribution to linguistic theory. The synopsis should indicate the breadth of the entire dissertation but may focus on the most important findings. The synopsis will be reviewed for appropriateness of form and content by the journal's editorial staff but will not be sent out for anonymous peer review. Synopses should be formatted according to the guidelines for submission of articles. A synopsis should not exceed 1,000 words, including references, and should not include footnotes, tables, or figures. Include the author's name, institution, year of Ph.D., and major advisor's name following the title. Synopses should be submitted as an e-mail attachment to Editors@LanguageAcquisition.org or according to the instructions available on the journal's Web site (<http://www.LanguageAcquisition.org>). When contributing the synopsis, the author must certify that it has not been published or submitted for publication elsewhere in its submitted form.

Blind Review. The submitted manuscript must be anonymous. The authors' names and affiliations must be omitted, any acknowledgments must be removed, and unpublished works by any of the authors must be attributed to "Anonymous." Every effort should be made by the authors to ensure that the manuscript contains no clue to their identities.

Permissions. Authors are responsible for all statements made in their work and for obtaining proper permission. Permission must be obtained to reprint or adapt a table or figure; to reprint quotations exceeding the limits of fair use from one source; and/or to reprint any portion of poetry, prose, or song lyrics. Authors should write to the copyright owner and the original author(s) and publisher to request nonexclusive world rights in all languages to use the material in the article and in future print and nonprint editions. Provide copies of all permissions and credit lines obtained.

Certifications. In the e-mail or cover letter accompanying a submission, the authors must certify that the findings reported in the manuscript have not been published previously and that the manuscript is not being submitted elsewhere simultaneously. Authors should also certify that they have complied with the Ethical Standards of the American Psychological Association (<http://www.apa.org/ethics>) in the treatment of their samples.

Tables and Figures. Tables and figures should not be embedded in the text, but should be included as separate sheets or files. A short descriptive title should appear above each table with a clear legend and any footnotes suitably identified below. All units must be included. Figures should be completely labeled, taking into account necessary size reduction. Captions should be typed, double-spaced, on a separate sheet. All original figures should be clearly marked in pencil on the reverse side with the number, author's name, and top edge indicated.

Illustrations. Illustrations submitted (line drawings, halftones, photos, photomicrographs, etc.) should be digital files. Digital files are recommended for highest quality reproduction and should follow these guidelines:

- * 300 dpi or higher
- * sized to fit on a journal page
- * EPS, TIFF, or PSD format only
- * submitted as separate files, not embedded in text files

Color illustrations will be considered for publication; however, the author will be required to bear the full cost involved in their printing and publication. The charge for the first page with color is $900.00. The next three pages with color are $450.00 each. A custom quote will be provided for color art totaling more than 4 journal pages. Good-quality color prints or files should be provided in their final size. The publisher has the right to refuse publication of color prints deemed unacceptable.

Proofs. All proofs must be corrected and returned to the publisher within 48 hours of receipt. Only correction of typographical errors is permitted. Reprints of an individual article may be ordered from Taylor & Francis by using the link to the reprint order form included with page proofs.
